

Axel Marion is PhD student at the Graduate institute of international and development studies, Geneva, and associate scholar of the Fondation Pierre du Bois. His researches concern the recent history of the European construction, particularly the transnational dynamics and popular dimension. His interest in political geography expresses itself also in the study of the Polar Regions.