

Dr. Basil Germond is Research Fellow at the University of St Andrews. Previously he was Visiting Research Fellow with the Changing Character of War Programme (University of Oxford). He has also taught at the Geneva School of Diplomacy, as well as at the Graduate Institute of International Studies (where he was Teaching Assistant for three years while completing his PhD in International Relations). Basil is specialized in European security, as well as in maritime and naval issues, on which he has published widely in English and French.

His recent publications include Les forces navales européennes dans la période post-guerre froide (L'Harmattan, Paris, 2008, 295p), Construire l'Europe. Mélanges en hommage à Pierre du Bois (co-edited with André Liebich, Presses universitaires de France, IHEID, Paris, Geneva, 2008, 301p), as well as "Multinational Military Cooperation and its Challenges: the Case of European Naval Operations in the Wider Mediterranean Area" (International Relations, Vol.22, No.2, June 2008, pp.173-191).